COLOR 89 MIN PARAMOUNT 2002
Paramount DVD Collection Series - When the Great Depression struck America in the 1920s, finding work was hard, but if you were poor and black it was virtually impossible. Working as a porter for the Pullman Rail Company was an option, but it meant taking home a third as much as white employees and working some days for free. You could forget about being called by your real name: all black porters were simply called George, after George Pullman, the first person to employ emancipated slaves. Asa Philip Randolph, a black journalist and educated socialist trying to establish a voice for these workers, agrees to fight for the Pullman porters cause and form the first black union in America. Livelihoods and lives would be put at risk in the attempt to gain 10,000 signatures of the men known only as George. This is the true story of the formation of the first black-controlled union, the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and of how a courageous leader came to be known as the most dangerous man in America. Based on the novel 'A Long Hard Journey' by Frederick McKissack. Written by Cyrus Nowrasteh. Directed by Robert Townsend. Language: English; Captioned for the deaf and hard of hearing.

Barrow, Alaska: northernmost town in the U.S. Isolated in 80 miles of roadless wilderness, cut off every winter for 30 days of night.” So says the opening screen. More importantly, the population dwindles from over 500 to 150 souls willing to brave the cold and the seemingly endless night. Charged with protecting the town during its nocturnal period, Sheriff Eben is a man trying to reconnect with his estranged wife Stella, who misses the last plane out before nightfall. As they deal with being thrust together again, a rash of crimes–including the killing of a number of dogs and the destruction of a helicopter–breaks out over the tiny town. As Eben and Stella attempt to solve these crimes, powerful strangers walk into town, seemingly supporting them and with the few lights available, townsfolk must try to survive the 30 Days of Night. COLOR 90 MIN BUENA VIST 1992
Aladdin is an orphan living on the streets of the city of Agrabah, continually outwitting and avoiding local law enforcement. One day he meets a young girl–also hiding from the guards–who is actually Princess Jasmine, seeking to escape from a disagreement with her father the Sultan about her marriage. He gallantly conceals her, and promptly falls in love. Soon, the Grand Vizier Jafar divines that Aladdin represents the key to his plans, and tricks him into the mysterious Cave of Wonders. Aladdin finds an ornate lamp, and, accidentally comes face-to-face with a blue genie who agrees to grant him three wishes. Aladdin, with the help of his sidekicks – a monkey named Abu and a flying carpet, seeks to win Jasmine's hand, defeat the evil Jafar and his vicious parrot, Iago, and save Agrabah. At the conclusion of his adventures, Aladdin learns that he is a prince where it truly matters most--on the inside. Voices: Scott Weinger, Robin Williams, Linda Larkin, Jonathan Freeman, Frank Welker, Gilbert Gottfried and Douglas Seale.

Judah Ben-Hur is a young Jewish nobleman from a prominent family who is reunited with his childhood friend Messala. Messala returns to Judea as a Roman tribune. There is a genuine friendship between the two men, yet the clash of their cultures drives a wedge between them. That wedge finally drives Messala to banish Judah to the slave galleys and send his mother and his sister to prison. From that point forward, Judah's life becomes a quest: a quest to survive and a quest for vengeance. Judah survives the galleys to become the adopted son of a Roman general, and his triumphant return to Judea permits him to challenge and subsequently confront Messala in a chariot race. A satire of the Hollywood Western genre set loosely in the old west. In an attempted land grab, a black sheriff is sent to the small town of Rockridge by the Governor, in the hopes of outraging the townspeople and getting them to sell their land - land about to be worth a fortune when the railroad comes through. While the film is a send up of Westerns it still touches on traditional Western themes of violence and good versus evil as well as racial discrimination. Written and directed by Mel Brooks.

Never give a saga an even break! Blazing Saddles is an iconoclastic, not-politically-correct parody; one of the 1970s most successful and popular films. Every cliched element from every Western ever made is turned upside down and inside out, while retaining all the familiar caricatures—eh, characters—of the genre: a dance-hall girl, a gunslinger, a sheriff, and a town full of pure folk. Mel Brooks redefined film comedy and proved that even sophomoric, scatological humor could be used to ridicule prejudice, injustice, and apathy. Cast includes Cleavon Little, Gene Wilder, Slim Pickens, Harvey Korman, Madeline Kahn, David Huddleston, Claude Ennis Starrett Jr. Written and directed by Mel Brooks. Keith breaks down a range of contemporary media forms, zeroing in on movies and music videos that glorimize womanizing, pornography that trades in the brutalization of women, comedians who make fun of sexual assault, and a groundswell of men’s magazines and cable TV shows that revel in media myths of American manhood. Even as epidemic levels of men’s violence against women persist in the real world, the message Keith uncovers in virtually every corner of our entertainment culture is clear: It’s not only normal – but cool – for boys and men to control and humiliate women. A feature film based on the events surrounding the late Wilma Mankiller’s life that led to her political career, and ultimately to her becoming the first female Chief of the Cherokee Nation. The film begins with Mankiller returning to Oklahoma from California in the late 1970s, and follows her as she meets her future husband, Charlie Soap, and has a near-fatal car wreck, but the film is centered on the Bell Water Project. Bell is a community in the Cherokee Nation where most residents did not have indoor plumbing. Mankiller, the director of the Nation’s Community Development Department at the time, and Soap, who also worked for the Nation, began an outreach program to the community which led to the tribe supplying equipment and assistance for a 16-mile waterline that members of the community dug themselves. The project gained considerable assistance for a 16-mile waterline that members of the community dug themselves. The project gained considerable attention as a model of self-sufficiency and self-determination in Indian country. Based on her popularity from the Bell project, Mankiller successfully ran for Deputy Chief in 1983; the position led to her succeeding Chief Ross Swimmer when he was appointed as head of the Bureau of Indian Affairs in 1985. Cast includes Kimberly Guerrero, Mo Brings Plenty, Steve Reevis, Daryl Tonemah, Oren R. Lyons, Zahn McClarnon, Ben Livingston. Written by Louise Rubacky, Tim Kelly, and Gary Miranda. On January 20, 1942, 15 German officials attended a conference at Wannsee, on the outskirts of Berlin. The meeting comprised of mid-ranking SS commanders and a variety of government ministers. The meeting was organized by SS Major Adolf Eichmann under the direction of Chief of Security Reinhard Heydrich. It was a polite conference, but under this thin veneer of manners lay an evil intent. By the end of the meeting, the fate of six million Jews would be decided and the shape of the world would be altered forever. Based on the meeting minutes found in the files of the German Foreign Office in 1947. Cast includes Kenneth Branagh, Stanley Tucci, Colin Firth, Jonathan Coy, Brendan Coyle, Ben Daniels, Barnaby Kay, Kevin McNally, Ian McNeice, Brian Pettifer, Ewan Stewart, Peter Sullivan, Owen Teale. In a remote area of Northern Kenya, activist Tessa Quayle is found brutally murdered. Tessa's companion, a doctor, appears to have fled the scene and all the evidence points to a crime of passion. Members of the British High Commission in Nairobi assume that Tessa's widower, their mild-mannered and unambitious colleague Justin Quayle, will leave the matter to them. Haunted by remorse and jarred by rumors of his late wife's infidelities, Quayle surprises everyone by embarking on a personal odyssey that will take him across three continents.

Using his privileged access to diplomatic secrets, Justin risks his own life and will stop at nothing to expose the truth—a conspiracy more far-reaching and deadly than Quayle could ever have imagined. A young filmmaker attempts to understand his life by recording it on film, only to have his experiment turn into an alienating voyeuristic obsession. As news from the Vietman War and social unrest blares over the radio, David Holzman unloads comic-neurotic monologues to his 16mm camera. When his relationship with Penny goes south, he retreats further into moving images, secretly recording his pretty neighbor and even turning his lens to the Vietman War. No longer able to deal with life outside celluloid, all of his ties to the real world begin to erode. This satire of a narcissistic artist is also a fiction about the deceptions of cinematic illusionism. Early on, Holzman quotes Jean-Luc Goddard’s famous dictum that ‘the cinema is truth 24 frames-per-second.’ As Holzman soon learns, it lies just as often. Cast includes L.M. Kit Carson, Eileen Dietz, Lorenzo Manc, Louise Levine, Fern McBride, Michael Levine, Bob Lesser, and Jack Baran. Written and directed by Jim McBride.

Pier Paolo Pasolini’s Trilogy of life (Criterion Collection) Series - Pier Paolo Pasolini weaves together a handful of Giovanni Boccaccio’s fourteenth-century moral tales in this picturesque free-for-all. The Decameron explores the deceptions and dark corners of an earlier and, as the filmmaker saw it, less compromised time. Among the chief delights are a young man’s exploits with a gang of grave robbers, a flock of randy nuns who sin with a strapping gardener, and Pasolini’s appearance as a pupil of the painter Giotto, at work on a massive fresco. One of the director’s most popular films, The Decameron, transposed to Naples from Boccaccio’s Florence, is a cutting takedown of the petties surrounding religion and sex. After nearly 20 years of living in the continental U.S., filmmaker Christen Hepuakoa Marquez returns to Hawaii to learn the meaning of her name. In Hawaii culture, parents don’t give a name, they haku inoa. Haku means to weave, and inoa is the Hawaiian word for name. In traditional Hawaiian culture a name is considered a sacred extension of a person’s identity. Words are artfully woven together like the strands in a moana (pandanus leaf mat) to create a poem that tells the namesake’s heritage and destiny. Marquez’s mother Elena created her name and is the only person who knows its true meaning. But Elena was diagnosed with schizophrenia more than 20 years ago, and has a history of being physically abusive. Marquez’s relationship with her mother suffered because of the illness, and her years away from the islands eroded her knowledge of Native Hawaiian culture is meager. As Marquez doggedly pursues this piece of her identity, she reconnects with her mother and struggles through the fights and misunderstandings to unlock the mystery of her own name. Directed by Christen Hepuakoa Marquez. In English and Hawaiian with English subtitles.

A portrait of Gregory Bateson, celebrated anthropologist, philosopher, author, naturalist, and systems theorist. His story is lovingly told by his youngest daughter, Nora, with footage from Gregory’s own films shot in the 1930s with his wife Margaret Mead in Bali and New Guinea, along with photographs, filmed lectures, and interviews. Gregory Bateson was a man who studied the interrelationships of the complex systems we live in with scientific rigor and enormous integrity. His theories, such as "the double bind" and "the pattern which connects," continue to impact the fields of anthropology, psychiatry, information science, cybernetics, urban planning, biology, and ecology, challenging people to think in new ways. Through this film, Nora Bateson sets out to show that his ideas are not just fodder for academic theory, but can help instruct a way of life. She presents his thinking using a richly personal perspective, focusing on the stories Bateson used to present his ideas and how the beauty of life itself provided the framework of his life’s pursuits.

Young Tina lives with her mother and stepfather on a wildlife reserve in Kenya. While her stepfather believes this is a wonderful environment for her to grow up in, her mother becomes increasingly concerned by her behaviour. These concerns are reinforced when it is revealed that her daughter's best friend in the whole world is a fully grown lion. Worried that her daughter may be turning into a savage, she sends for her former husband, Tina's biological father, in the hope that he can take her back to civilization (in this case rural Connecticut). But it seems as though Tina's mother wants something more than a civilized upbringing for her daughter. Cast includes William Holden, Trevor Howard, Capucine, Pamela Franklin. Directed by Jack Cardiff. In Spanish and English. This DVD is in the PAL format and must be played using a Multi-region machine.

In the midst of the economic meltdown, Gaining Ground explores the innovative, grassroots organizing efforts of the Dudley Street Neighborhood Initiative (DSNI) in Boston. DSNI was created 25 years ago when the community had been devastated by bank redlining, arson-for-profit and illegal dumping, and has become one of the preeminent models for community-based change.

Over the course of two years, we watch a new generation of leaders working to prevent foreclosures and bring jobs and opportunities for young people to one of the city’s most diverse and economically challenged neighborhoods. The salesmen of Premiere Properties are experiencing tough times, sales are down and the leads they are working are old and proving worthless. The prime leads, the Glengarry leads, are being withheld by the company until the sales crew starts to make some property sales. The men are getting desperate and are wound up tighter than a coiled spring as they are visited by a top man in the company, who tells them to make sales or they are fired. The film is a riveting tale of desperation and betrayal. Based on the play by David Mamet.

A romantic comedy that provides a candid and honest look at what women in love. A young woman is looking for romance in her life, her friends grow tired of hearing her whine about the missing “X” factor in her romantic life and set her up with an older woman. The older woman is bawful and isn’t very stylish. The two women don’t have much chemistry at first, but the younger woman soon finds that first impressions can be misleading.

The two women are well developed characters. The movie is lighthearted and has a lot of heart. The characters are well written and the story is well told.

A true story based on the story of the first black regiment for the North in the Civil War. Robert Gould Shaw and Cabot Forbes are two idealistic young Bostonians that lead the 54th Massachusetts volunteer Infantry regiment. The story is based on the biographies of Robert Gould Shaw. Cast includes Matthew Broderick, Denzel Washington, Cary Elwes, Morgan Freeman. Screenplay by Kevin Jarre. Directed by Edward Zwick. <td>A look at the life and times of Senator John Kerry. Kerry is a United States Senator, Vietnam veteran, and candidate for President of the United States of America. Kerry rose to national prominence as a young war veteran who organized protests against the Vietnam Conflict. As a young man Kerry volunteered for military service and served with valor and was wounded in conflict. He grew disillusioned with the war and the United States handling of the conflict. Upon his return home he worked with other veterans to oppose and protest the war and proved himself an eloquent speaker on a national level. The film is more than a biography of John Kerry, it is also the story of an American generation that came of age in the tumultuous 1960’s. The film was released during the 2004 Presidential election in which Kerry was the Democratic candidate. During his campaign Republican groups aired commercials which attempted to distort Kerry’s military record. Based on the book &quot;Tour of Duty&quot; by Douglas Brinkley. Directed by George Butler. An epic drama of power, passion, and betrayal set during the Spanish Inquisition. Told through the stories of celebrated Spanish painter Francisco Goya. Set against political turmoil at the end of the Spanish Inquisition and start of the invasion of Spain by Napoleon's army. Captures the essence and beauty of Goya's work which is best known for both the colorful depictions of the royal court and its people, and his grim depictions of the brutality of war and life in 18th century Spain. When Goya's beautiful

From the timbered shores of the Pacific Northwest to the marble halls of Washington, DC, the choices about how we use our natural heritage are filled with controversy. Whether it is the protection of endangered species or meeting the needs of a growing public, the fate of public lands is constantly challenged. Visionary foresters Gifford Pinchot and Aldo Leopold shaped the debate for a hundred years. Their journey from the “wise use” of resources to the idea of a “land ethic” has defined the evolution of the Forest Service. The story is told from a wide variety of perspectives, including leading historians as well many of the participants, inside and outside the Forest Service.

A silent film classic about three World War I era Californians whose friendship is destroyed by avarice after one wins a lottery jackpot. Director Erich Von Stroheim was so concerned about capturing the detail of the original novel that he ended up producing an eight hour film, which was later edited down by the studio to this much shorter version. This version also features an orchestral soundtrack and a brief prologue. Based on the Frank Norris' novel "McTeague." Screen adaptation by June Mathias and Erich Von Stroheim. Directed by Erich Von Stroheim.

One of the many consequences of the Vietnam War were the thousands of displaced Vietnamese who had to flee their country and found themselves in the United States. In 1975 refugee camps were set up across the deserts of the Western United States. The immigrants lived in the camps until sponsors could be found to help them assimilate into American life. This is the story of the relationship between a Vietnamese immigrant and the Marine in charge of the camp for whom he translates. Grey Gardens
The Criterion Collection Series - A documentary film about high-society dropouts Edith Bouvier Beale and her daughter Edie. The two women are the reclusive cousins of Jackie O., wife of President John F. Kennedy. Big and Little Edie live together amid the decay and disorder of their ramshackle East Hampton mansion. The filmmakers were able to achieve an intimate portrait of the two women, presenting an eerie echo of the Kennedy Camelot. The film has become a cult classic and established Little Edie as a fashion icon and philosopher queen. Directed by David Maysles, Albert Maysles, Ellen Hovde, and Muffie Meyer. In 2006, the Maysles used additional footage to produce another Grey Gardens film, 'The Beales of Grey Gardens.' This edition features audio commentary by filmmakers Albert Maysles, Ellen Hovde, Muffie Meyer, and Susan Froemke; Excerpts from a 1976 recorded interview with Little Edie Beale by Kathryn G. Graham for 'Interview' magazine; Video interviews with fashion designers Todd Oldham and John Barlett on the influence of 'Grey Gardens'; Behind-the-scenes photographs; Trailers; Filmographies; Essay by critic Hilton Als; Language: English; Subtitles: English; Captioned for the deaf and hard of hearing.

Investigates the authenticity, cultural identity, and the articulation of modern Native American experience in cinematic language and pop culture. Set on the Grand Pine Indian Reservation, aka Reservation X, “Honey Moccasin” combines elements of melodrama, performance art, cable access, and whodunit to question conventions of ethnic and sexual identity as well as film narrative. A comedy/thriller complete with a fashion show and torchy musical numbers, this witty film employs a surreal pastiche of styles to depict the rivalry between bars The Smokin Moccasin and The Iinkshuk Cafe, the saga of closeted drag queen/powwow clothing thief Zachary John, and the travails of crusading investigator Honey Moccasin. This irreverent reappropriation of familiar narrative strategies serves as a provocative spring-board for an investigation of authenticity, cultural identity, and the articulation of modern Native American experience in cinematic language and pop culture. In 1925, a biology teacher in a small Tennessee town is brought to trial for teaching Darwin’s theory of evolution in the classroom. The explosive trial pits the lawyer for the defense against a fundamentalist politician in a fiery battle of beliefs. The film is notable for the cast’s powerful performances and a story that is based heavily on the 1925 “Scopes monkey trial,” which is a debate that is still being waged in the twenty-first century. Based upon the play by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee. Cast includes Spencer Tracy, Frederic March, Gene Kelley, Dick York, Donna Anderson, Harry Morgan, Claude Akins, Noah Beery Jr., Jimmy Boyd, Ray Teal, Gordon Polk, Paul Hartman, Norman Fell, Philip Coolidge, Elliott Reid, Florence Eldridge. “Deep throat” is a sexually explicit adult film that upon its release in 1972 became a cultural phenomenon. It brought out large crowds of the general public to watch a pornographic film in the theaters and resulted in arrests of exhibitors who screened the film in their movie houses and was eventually banned from playing in twenty-three states. Made on a small budget with little expectations, the controversial film launched a sexual and cultural revolution and became one of the most successful independent films of all time. This documentary examines the politics, the porn stars, and the persecution, as well the mob involvement and the claims of on-set abuse of the lead actress Linda Lovelace. Directed and directed by Fenton Bailey and Randy Barbato. This DVD version features widescreen presentation; “The last word for now” Bill Maher, Erica Jong, Hugh Hefner, Wes Craven discuss America’s prevailing attitudes about sex; “The Binghampton trial: culturally speaking” the first town to put Deep Throat on trial; “Quincy house: poison ivy league” two Harvard students are arrested for screening Deep Throat; Commentary track with directors Randy Barbato and Fenton Bailey; Language: English; Subtitles: English, Spanish, and French.

An unusual American Western film in which many of the conventions of the genre are reworked: the good guys wear black and gender roles are reversed. Many scenes in the film resonate with sexual tension. Strong-willed saloonkeeper Vienna has a rocky relationship with local townspeople and cattle ranchers: where most locals oppose allowing the railway to come close to their town, she is eager for its arrival. Moreover, her stage-rober lover The Dancin' Kid and his gang frequent her saloon. However, this changes when Vienna takes up with Johnny Guitar, a man from her past, who has come to town, declared his love for Vienna, and offered to help protect her. But Johnny Guitar, a man from her past, who has come to town, declared his love for Vienna, and offered to help protect her. But when The Dancin' Kid robs the town bank, vengeful cattle rancher Emma Smalt (Mercedes McCambridge) is convinced that Vienna was involved in the robbery and leads the townspeople in burning down Vienna's saloon. The mob intends to hang Vienna, but Johnny Guitar rescues her at the last minute and they escape to The Dancin' Kid's secret lair. Out for blood, the townspeople hunt them down and kill The Dancin' Kid and his gang. The Qatsi trilogy: the Criterion collection Series – Koyaanisqatsi is a documentary (of sorts). It is also a visual concerto of images set to the haunting music of Phillip Glass. While there is no plot in the traditional sense, there is a definable scenario. The film opens on ancient native American cave drawings, while the soundtrack chant "Koyaanisqatsi" which is a Hopi phrase for "life out of balance". The film uses extensive time lapse photography (which speeds images up) and slow motion photography to make comparisons between different types of physical motion. In one of the first examples, we see cloud formations moving (speed up) intercut with a montage of ocean waves (slowed down) and in such a way we are able to see the similarities of movement between these natural forces. This technique of comparison exists throughout the film, and through it we learn more about the world around us. Cast includes Lou Dobbs and Ted Koppel (archival footage). Booklet available from Instructional Media Collections and Services, Powell Library Room 46. Directed by Godfrey Reggio. This film is about the members of an ordinary, modern Italian family, in love, at work, at one another's sides and on one another's nerves. The lives of the two brothers at the center of the story, Matteo and Nicola, tell a tale of youthful baby-boomer idealism, rebellion, and disillusionment, followed by the mellowing of middle age. Qualified as a doctor, Nicola embodies '60s restlessness, as he becomes a woodworker. Diffident literature student Matteo becomes a soldier, then a policeman and detective. Their lives unfold as threads in the larger historical tapestry, wherein events such as the Florence floods of 1966, workers' uprisings in Turin a few years later, the Red Brigades terrorism of the 1970s, and the Mafia trials of the 1990s occur and affect them. Though their lives follow wildly divergent paths the brothers remain close, and their decisions figure strongly in determining each other's futures. The film presents a fascinating study of the ways in which people continue to grow after they have become adults. The cast includes Adriano Giannini, Francesca Bertini, Fabrizio Gifuni, Andrea Tidona. Directed by Marco Tullio Giordana. The special features on this DVD include: Interview with Marco Tullio Giordana, Interview with Jasmine Trinca; Biographical notes on cast and crew. Language: Italian with optional Italian subtitles.

The Mask You Live In follows boys and young men as they struggle to stay true to themselves while negotiating America’s narrow definition of masculinity. Pressured by the media, their peer group, and even the adults in their lives, our protagonists confront messages encouraging them to disconnect from their emotions, devalue authentic friendships, objectify and degrade women, and resolve conflicts through violence. These gender stereotypes interconnect with race, class and circumstance, creating a maze of identity issues boys and young men must navigate to become ‘real’ men. Experts in neuroscience, psychology, sociology, sports, education, and media also weigh in, offering empirical evidence of the ‘boy crisis’ and tactics to combat it. The Mask You Live In ultimately illustrates how we, as a society, can raise a healthier generation of boys and young men. Participants: Joe Ehrmann, Judy Y. The messenger : the story of Joan of Arc

Joan of Arc was a peasant girl from a small village in France and this is a modern take on the epic medieval story. Acting on a message she claimed came from God, Joan went before the King of France in 1429 to deliver God's word: give her an army, and in God's name she would reclaim his diminished kingdom. Joan vowed to repel the English from France, and she led her troops to victories in many battles over the English. In the end Joan was betrayed by the country she fought for and she was tried by the English, found guilty, and burned at the stake. Cast includes Milla Jovovich, John Malkovich, Faye Dunaway, Dustin Hoffman, Pascal Gregory, Vincent Cassel, Tcheyk Karyo, Richard Ridings, Desmond Harrington. Written by Andrew Birkin and Luc Besson. To a growing number of Mexicans and Latinos in the Americas, narco-traffickers have become icons, glorified by musicians who praise their fame and success. In this new constituency, they represent a pathway out of the gutter, nurturing a new American dream fueled by money, drugs, and violence. The film is an explosive look at the drug cartels' pop culture influence on both sides of the border as seen through the eyes of a LA narcocorrido singer and a Juarez crime scene investigator. Bonus features: deleted scenes. Directed by Shaul Schwarz. In Spanish with English or Spanish subtitles.

Treasures III : social issues in American film 1900-1934 Series - In the years before World War I, virtually no issue was too controversial to bring to the screen. The first American movies were deeply engaged with society, coming from an era when movies and entertainment were intimately interwoven with public debate. As such, they were shown in commercial movie theaters but also in clubs, churches, schools, and everywhere screens could be hung outdoors—from the sides of city tenements to country barns. This archive sends these treasures back into the world, where they found their inspiration. Gender, family, and the crusade for equal voting rights dominate in program 2, "New Women." We've been told again and again that sports and politics don't mix. In this documentary, Dave Zirin, sports editor of The Nation magazine, takes viewers on a tour of the good, the bad, and the ugly of American sports culture – showing how sports have helped both to stabilize and to disrupt the political status quo throughout history. Explores how American sports, at their worst, have reinforced repressive political ideas and institutions by glorifying things like militarism, racism, sexism, and homophobia, as well as looking at a history of rebel athletes who dared to fight for social justice beyond the field of play. In 1948, legendary screen actress Ida Lupino left Warner Brothers to co-found The Filmmakers, an independent production company conceived as an alternative to the dominant aesthetics of Hollywood. With the low-key, intimate Not wanted (produced the next year by her Emerald Productions, Inc.), Lupino tackled the taboo topic of out-of-wedlock pregnancy, immediately venturing into territory where big-budget mainstream filmmakers feared to tread. In many ways this extraordinary first directorial effort, while uncredited, already bears the stamp of Lupino’s unique vision: the remarkable empathy felt for the lead character. Cast includes Sally Forrest, Keefe Brasselle and Leo Penn. Directed chiefly by Ida Lupino, following Elmer Clifton’s heart attack on the 3rd day of filming, although Ms. Lupino declined the screen credit for directing. In English.

Picasso and Braque go to the movies: (DVD)
COLOR 60 MIN NEW VIDEO 2008
This film advances an interesting thesis: if the static visual arts affected early cinema’s vocabulary, did moving pictures inspire Cubism’s two towering giants, Pablo Picasso and Georges Braque? Cinema and Cubism were born during the birth of modernity itself, and filmmaker Arne Gimcher argues that films, from the earliest days of Thomas Edison and the Lumière Brothers, were a crucial formative influence on Modern painting, particularly on Picasso and Braque. The movies' revolutionary portrayal of time, space, and motion was the engine behind the modernist revolution in fine art. Through interviews with art historians, practicing plastic and visual artists, poets, and filmmakers, it traces the effects of technological revolution—specifically the invention of aviation and the creation of cinema—and their interdependent influence on the art dubbed Modern. Narrator: Martin Scorsese; interviewees: Bernice Rose, Tom Gunning, Robert Whitman, Natasha Staller, Eric Fischl, Julian Schnabel, Jennifer Wild, Lucas Samaras, Coosje Van Bruggen, John Yau, Kim Tomadoglou, John Richardson, Adam Gopnik, Chuck Close. Directed by Arne Glimcher. In English, with optional subtitles for the deaf and hearing impaired.

Hollywood: A Celebration of the American Silent Film Series - Hollywood began turning out spectacular films, with original musical scores – often performed live by a symphony orchestra, and shown in glittering picture palaces. Audiences flocked to the theater and reacted enthusiastically for such films as “The Great Train Robbery” and “The Birth of a Nation.” Large audiences gave birth to the financial fortunes of Hollywood. Interviews are featured with Lillian Gish, Dolores Costello, Blanche Sweet, Jackie Coogan, King Vidor. Includes rare footage and excerpts from “Wings,” “The Wind,” “Noah’s Ark,” and “The Black Pirate.” The Hollywood series celebrates the birth of an industry, the town, and the people who made it all happen – the stars, the town, and the people who made it all happen – the stars, the scandals, the directors, producers, cameramen, and stuntmen. And the films themselves that make up the legend known as Hollywood.

A fortune teller in a small Austrian village claims that perky Ilonka is destined to marry an "artist" whom she'll meet in Vienna. Ilonka is puzzled because she doesn't live in Vienna, but miraculously ends up there after falling asleep in a hay wagon. She meets a soldier drummer who has the potential to be a talented composer, but the military won't let him. To gain recognition, Ilonka smuggles one of his compositions to the Austrian Emperor in one of his weekly pastry deliveries. Difficulties and misunderstandings inevitably follow, although Ilonka's hair-brained acts set the stage for a melodious and happy fulfillment of the fortune tellers predictions. In the seventeenth century men played all the parts on the London stage, both the male and female roles. In the 1660s King Charles II renounced the royal edit that only men can play women on the stage. Women now had the chance to star in female roles, but it also meant that men who specialized playing... women were no longer in demand. This is the story of the rise of former dresser, who takes over the role of Desdemona in Shakespeare's "Othello" from the male star she used to dress and becomes an instant star. There is an obesity epidemic in the United States and filmmaker Morgan Spurlock’s film puts a spotlight on one of major causes, the fast food diet. A man in good health and good shape, proven by a battery of tests in the film, Spurlock devises an experiment, which calls for him to eat a “McDonald’s only” diet for thirty days straight. He will eat only at McDonald’s fast food restaurants for all meals, but will only “super size” his meals, a promotional tool of the chain, when offered the option by counter people. The film captures the effects on his body by his diet, the negative effects of his food intake go beyond the mere weight gain he expected, and include health changes so drastic that his doctors strongly recommended he stop his experiment before the thirty days are over. The film also touches on topics of corporate responsibility, nutritional education, school lunch programs, and how as a nation we are eating ourselves to death. Directed by Morgan Spurlock. Audrey Burke is reeling from the shock of the news that has just been delivered to her door by the local police - her husband, Brian, had been killed in a random act of violence. Once anchored by the love and comforts of their marriage, Audrey is now adrift. Impulsively, she turns to Jerry, a down-and-out addict who has been her husband's close friend since childhood. Desperate to fill the painful void caused by her husband's death, Audrey invites Jerry to move into the room adjacent to the garage in the hope that he can help her and her children cope with their sudden loss. Now, in facing a daily battle to stay off drugs and his unexpected role as surrogate parent and friend to Audrey's son and daughter, he finds a core of inner resilience. As Jerry and Audrey navigate grief and denial, their fragile bonds are constantly tested. Together, they discover the strength to move forward. Jewel thief Elizabeth Lipp and her lover, William Walter, plan to steal an emerald dagger from Istanbul's Topkapi Museum. Cedric Page, an eccentric British inventor; Giulio, a mute athlete; and Fischer, a strongman, are recruited. In Greece, the gang hires an old man Arthur Simpson to drive a car over the border and meet them in Istanbul, but he is stopped by the Turkish police, who discover weapons hidden in the trunk. Major Tufan, one of the policemen, questions Simpson and then allows him to leave on the condition that he spy on the gang. At their villa headquarters, the gang plans the robbery: Fischer is to lower Giulio on a rope from a window near the museum's ceiling so that Giulio can steal the dagger while dangling above the sensitively wired floors of the museum. Geven, the drunken cook at the villa, believes the men are Russian spies and tells Simpson, who in turn passes the information on to Tufan. Later, Geven accidentally smashes Fischer's hands in a door, and Simpson is enlisted to take Fischer's place, although he has revealed his link to the police. The gang manages to elude Tufan, steal the dagger, and pass it to a Gypsy who will smuggle it out of Turkey. militarism against the backdrop of a culture that has normalized violent and regressive forms of masculinity in the face of challenges to traditional male power and authority. Along the way, the film provides a stunning look at the violent, sexist, and homophobic messages boys and young men routinely receive from virtually every corner of the culture, from television, movies, video games, and advertising to pornography, the sports culture, and US political culture.
