Fiona and Grant are an Ontario couple who have been married for over 40 years. During the twilight of their years, Grant is forced to face the fact that Fiona’s ‘forgetfulness’ actually is Alzheimer’s. After Fiona wanders away and is found, the decision is made for her to go into a nursing home. For the first time in their relationship, they are forced to undergo a separation since this is the nursing home ‘no-visitors,’ first 30 days policy of a patient’s stay. When Grant visits Fiona after the orientation period, he is devastated to find out that not only has she seemingly forgotten him, but she has transferred her affections to another man. As the distance between husband and wife grows, Grant must draw upon his love for Fiona to perform an act of self-sacrifice in order to ensure her happiness. Based on the short story “The bear came over the mountain” by Alice Munro. Cast includes Julie Christie, Gordon Pinsent, Olympia Dukakis, Michael Murphy, Kristen Thomson, Wendy Crewson. Special features: documentary with actress Julie Christie; Deleted scenes; deleted scenes commentary with director Sarah Polley. Directed by Sarah Polley. As a boy a young Bruce Wayne watched in horror as his millionaire parents were slain in front of his eyes. This trauma led him to become obsessed with revenge. After appearing to the East where he seeks counsel with a ninja cult leader, he returns to his now decaying Gotham City. The City is now overrun by organized crime and dangerous individuals manipulating the system. The discovery of a cave under his mansion, and a prototype armoured suit leads him to take on a new persona. He becomes Batman and strikes fear into the hearts of men who do wrong. With the help of rising cop Jim Gordon, Batman sets out to take down the various criminal schemers that have been set in motion by individuals such as mafia don Falcone, the twisted doctor/drug dealer Jonathan 'The Scarecrow' Crane, and a mysterious third party that is quite familiar with Wayne and waiting to strike when the time is right. Despite differences in rank and background, King Henry II and Thomas Becket are lifelong friends. The King is in constant conflict with the Church, which refuses to contribute financing to his wars in France, and jealously guards the tax-free status granted it by previous monarchs. When the Archbishop of Canterbury dies, Henry has a brilliant idea: rather than another pious cleric loyal to Rome, he will appoint his old friend, Thomas Becket—technically a déacon—to the post. Unfortunately, Becket takes the job seriously, holding devotion to God and the Church above his loyalty to the throne, or the person of its inhabitant. In opposition to Henry, he proves abler than his predecessors do, and the clash of two powerful personalities leads to destruction. COLOR 222 MIN WARNER HOM 1959
Judah Ben-Hur is a young Jewish nobleman from a prominent family who is reunited with his childhood friend Messala. Messala returns to Judea as a Roman tribune. There is a genuine friendship between the two men, yet the clash of their cultures drives a wedge between them. That wedge finally drives Messala to banish Judah to the slave galleys and sends his mother and his sister to prison. From that point forward, Judah's life becomes a quest: a quest to survive and a quest for vengeance. Judah survives the galleys to become the adopted son of a Roman general, and his triumphant return to Judea permits him to challenge and subsequently confront Messala in a chariot race. Cast includes Charlton Heston, Jack Hawkins, Haya Harareet, Stephen Boyd, Hugh Griffith, Martha Scott, Cathy O'Donnell, Same Jaffe. Screenplay by Karl Tunberg. Based on the novel by Lew Wallace. Never give a saga an even break! Blazing Saddles is an iconoclastic, not-politically-correct parody; one of the 1970s most successful and popular films. Every cliched element from every Western ever made is turned upside down and inside out, while retaining all the familiar caricatures--eh, characters--of the genre: a dance-hall girl, a gunslinger, a sheriff, and a town full of pure folk. Mel Brooks redefined film comedy and proved that even sophomoric, scatological humor could be used to ridicule prejudice, injustice, and apathy. This entry in the Basic Instinct sweepstakes poses the question: If love hurts, does sex kill? The judge and jury certainly want to find out when Rebecca's latest conquest, a multi-millionaire, dies of a heart attack while making love to her. Eight million dollars was bequeathed to Rebecca in his will, and District Attorney Robert Garrett is convinced that Rebecca, knowing that her rich lover had a weak heart, killed him with wild sex so that she could get her mitts on the money. Rebecca's lawyer, Frank Dunaney, thinks differently, suspecting the millionaire's private secretary Joanne Braslow of the crime, since she was dumped by the millionaire for Rebecca. Besides which, Frank is attracted to Rebecca himself and throws legal ethics out the window as he starts a sadomasochistic affair with her. Brandon Teena is a small time con artist living in the Midwest. He moves from town to town wearing out his welcome and sometimes ending up in jail. In one town he falls for a woman and spends time hanging out with her circle of friends. When the woman’s friends, two ex-cons, discover that Brandon is actually Teena Brandon, a young woman, they lash out violently, raping and beating her. The two men then kill the couple awaiting trial, seizing the opportunity; the men kill Brandon and a friend while they sleep. The film is based on a true story that is also told in the documentary "The Brandon Teena Story." Filmmaker Thomas Keith takes aim at the forces in male culture that condition boys and men to dehumanize and disrespect women. Keith breaks down a range of contemporary media forms, zeroing in on movies and music videos that glorimize womanizing, pornography that trades in the brutalization of women, comedians who make fun of sexual assault, and a groundswell of men's magazines and cable TV shows that revel in old-school myths of American manhood. Even as epidemic levels of men's violence against women persist in the real world, the message Keith uncovers in virtually every corner of our entertainment culture is clear: It's not only normal – but cool – for boys and men to control and humiliate women. Arguing that there's nothing normal, natural, or inevitable about this mentality, The Bro Code challenges young people, young men and women alike, to stop up and fight back against the idea that being a real man means being sexist. With Thomas Keith; interviewees: Douglas Rushkoff, Michael Leahy, Rory Reid, Robert Jensen, Michael Kimmell, Shirat Tarrant, Gilbert Pete, Neal King, Richard Takanlender, Gonzalo Rucuo, J.W. Willey. With a script by satirist and cartoonist Jules Feiffer, Mike Nichols’s “Carnal Knowledge” ruthlessly exposed the damage wrought by pre-1960s sexual mores. From their post-World War II college years at Amherst through the Vietnam era, buddies Jonathan and Sandy are a catalogue of male sexual dysfunction. Sensitive Sandy falls in love with and marries college sweetheart Susan only to wonder years later if he missed out on finding the perfect sex/love partner. Jonathan lives for aggressive sexual conquest even as he rails against female "ballbusters." Finally guilt-marrying his tiredly voluptuous mistress Bobbie after she tries to kill herself. By the late 60s, Sandy has moved on to a hippie chick girlfriend who can raise his consciousness about the sexual revolution, and Jonathan is single again, but Sandy is a little too old for the peace-and-love generation, and Jonathan bitterly faces emasculating impotence. The cast includes Jack Nicholson, Ann-Margret, Arthur Garfunkel and Candice Bergen.

Based on the best-selling Stephen King novel, Carrie catches the mind, shakes it and refuses to let it go. Starring Sissy Spacek and Piper Laurie, John Travolta and Amy Irving, this ultimate vengeance fantasy is one of the all-time great horror classics! At the center of the terror is Carrie, a tortured high-school misfit with no confidence, no friends...and no idea about the extent of her secret powers of telekinesis. But when her psychotic mother and sadistic classmates finally go too far, the once-shy teen becomes an unrestrained, vengeance-seeking powerhouse who, with the help of her "special gift," causes all hell to break loose in a famed cinematic frenzy of blood, fire and brimstone! "Carrie White is a shy young girl who doesn't make friends easily. After her classmates taunt her about her horrified reaction to her totally unexpected first period one of them takes pity on her and gets Tommy Ross, her boyfriend and class hunk, to invite Carrie to the senior prom. Meanwhile another girl who has been banned from the prom for her continued aggressive behavior is not as forgiving and plans a trick to embarrass Carrie in front of the whole school. What she doesn't realise is that Carrie is... gifted. and you really don't want to get her angry. Cast includes Sissy Spacek, John Travolta, William Katz, Amy Irving, P. J. The Cherokee word for water
COLOR 93 MIN CHEROKEE W 2012
A feature film based on the events surrounding the late Wilma Mankiller's life that led to her political career, and ultimately to her becoming the first female Chief of the Cherokee Nation. The film begins with Mankiller returning to Oklahoma from California in the late 1970s, and follows her as she meets her future husband, Charlie Soap, and has a near-fatal car wreck, but the film is centered on the Bell Water Project. Bell is a community in the Cherokee Nation where most residents did not have indoor plumbing. Mankiller, the director of the Nation's Community Development Department at the time, and Soap, who also worked for the Nation, began an outreach program to the community which led to the tribe supplying equipment and assistance for a 16-mile waterline that members of the community dug themselves. The project gained considerable attention as a model of self-sufficiency and self-determination in Indian country. Based on her popularity from the Bell project, Mankiller successfully ran for Deputy Chief in 1983; the position led her to succeeding Chief Ross Swimmer when he was appointed as head of the Bureau of Indian Affairs in 1985. Cast includes Kimberly Guerrero, Mo Brings Plenty, Steve Reevis, Darryl Tonemah, Oren R. Lyons, Zahn McClarnon, Ben Livingston. Written by Louise Ruback, Tim Kelly, and Gary Miranda. Directed by Charlie Soap and Tim Kelly.

A visitor from outer-space on a peaceful mission to Earth is promptly shot the moment he emerges from his space craft. He survives the shot and spends time among earthlings to try to capture the era of platinum blondes, cockfights, glamour, and broken dreams, with an edge of sexual and physical danger. The message is that Earth doesn't end its destructive ways the other planets will destroy it. Produced in the early 1950's the film mirrors many of that era's fears: war, the atomic bomb, and communism. Based on the story by Harry Bates. Cast includes Michael Rennie, Patricia Neal, Hugh Marlowe, Sam Jaffe. Directed by Robert Wise.

Pier Paolo Pasolini's Trilogy of Life (Criterion Collection) - Pier Paolo Pasolini weaves together a handful of Giovanni Boccaccio's fourteenth-century moral tales in this picturesque free-for-all. The Decameron explores the delectations and dark corners of an earlier and, as the filmmaker saw it, less compromised time. Among the chief delights are a young man's exploits with a gang of grave robbers, a flock of randy nuns who sin with a trapping gardener, and Pasolini's appearance as a pupil of the painter Giotto, at work on a massive fresco. One of the director's most popular films, The Decameron, transposed to Naples from Boccaccio's Florence, is a cutting takedown of the petties surrounding religion and sex. Special edition features a new digital restoration; "On 'The Decameron,'" a new visual essay by film scholar Patrick Rumble; "The Lost Body of Alibech" (2005), a forty-five minute documentary by Roberto Chiesi; trailers; and a new English subtitle translation. Written and directed by Pier Paolo Pasolini. Music by Ennio Morricone. In Italian with English subtitles. Box set includes accompanying booklet containing cast lists and credits for the three feature films included in Pier Paolo Pasolini's Trilogy of Life and several essays by Pier Paolo Pasolini and Colin MacCabe, available from the UCLA Instructional Media Collections and Services.

Eclipse series 43: Agnes Varda in California

A house party in Los Angeles is the setting for a group of women to gather, eat, and talk about eating and what food represents to them. The party celebrates the milestone birthdays for three women, one turning thirty, the others forty, and fifty. One of the guests is a filmmaker who turns her camera on the guests who muse on body image, hang-ups, eating disorders, relationships, and society’s obsession with youth and beauty. The film is loosely scripted and shot using a cinema verite style creating a spontaneous and honest feel for the women’s discussion. Cast includes Nelly Alard, Frances Bergen, Mary Crosby, Lisa Richards, Gwen Welles, Daphna Kastner, Elizabeth Kemp, Marlena Giovi, Marina Gregory. Written and directed by Henry Jaglom. Eclipse series 8: Lubitsch musicals

A portrait of Gregory Bateson, celebrated anthropologist, philosopher, author, naturalist, and systems theorist. His story is lovingly told by his youngest daughter, Nora, with footage from Gregory’s own films shot in the 1930s with his wife Margaret Mead in Bali and New Guinea, along with photographs, filmed lectures, and interviews. Gregory Bateson was a man who studied the interrelationships of the complex systems we live in with scientific rigor and enormous integrity. His theories, such as “the double bind” and “the pattern which connects”, continue to impact the fields of anthropology, psychiatry, information science, cybernetics, urban planning, biology, and ecology, challenging people to think in new ways. Through this film, Nora Bateson sets out to show that his ideas are not just fodder for academic study, but can help instruct a way of life. She presents his thinking using a richly personal perspective, focusing on the stories Bateson used to present his ideas and how the beauty of life itself provided the framework of his life’s pursuits. Interviewees: Ralph Abraham, Lois Bateson, Mary Catherine Bateson, Steward Brand, Jerry Brown, Fritjof Capra, Terry Deacon, Tim Keani, William Thompson. Directed by Nora Bateson. In English with optional English subtitles for the deaf and hard of hearing. For descriptions see individual titles: Lions love (...)and lies) – (Blu-ray Disc)

San Francisco architect Max Klein can see clearly now. He's been transformed ever since he stared death in the face, and discovered he was unafraid. Peter Weir directs 'Fearless,' the vivid story of how a near-death experience impacts the lives of three people. Jeff Bridges plays Max, more wildly alive and taking more risks than ever since surviving a plane crash. Isabella Rossellini is Laura, struggling to find in Max the man she married. And Rosie Perez is fellow crash survivor Carla: a bird still devastated by her grievous loss. It seems no one can heal her pain. But then she meets the one person who fearlessly knows how. Based on a novel by Rafael Yglesias. Cast includes Jeff Bridges, Isabella Rossellini, Rosie Perez, Tom Hulce, and John Turturro. Screenplay by Rafael Yglesias. Directed by Peter Weir. Told in flashback from his wife's deathbed, "Chasing Shakespeare" protagonist William dives under the gloomy waters of his memory to recall the love story of his life with Venus, a girl belonging to the Lighting Clan, a peculiar Native American family living in Arkansas with a strange communion with electricity. Their love is a difficult scenario to play: in a very Greek-Shakespearean tragedy manner, both of them belong to different cultures and backgrounds. Theater was the predecessor of cinema, and as it grew, cinema incorporated theaters parallels and metaphors. In 1918, Swedish silent films began to transform iconic landscapes into active participants, characters even, in cinematic drama. The stormy seas were now a metaphor of inner turmoil. The film puts to use its tempestuous and spectacular displays of thunder and lightning to indicate the passion felt between two young lovers, despite cultural divisiveness. Gaining ground, a follow-up to the award-winning documentary Holding Ground (1996), shows how one diverse Boston neighborhood has stemmed the tide against enormous odds. In the midst of the economic meltdown, Gaining Ground explores the innovative, grassroots organizing of the Dudley Street Neighborhood Initiative (DSNI) in Boston. DSNI was created 25 years ago when the community had been devastated by bank redlining, arson-for-profit and illegal dumping, and has become one of the preeminent models for community-based change. Over the course of two years, we watch a new generation of leaders working to prevent foreclosures and bring jobs and opportunities for young people to one of the city’s most diverse and economically challenged neighborhoods. A look at the life and times of Senator John Kerry. Kerry is a United States Senator, Vietnam veteran, and candidate for President of the United States of America. Kerry rose to national prominence as a young war veteran who organized protests against the Vietnam Conflict. As a young man Kerry volunteered for military service and served with valor and was wounded in conflict. He grew disillusioned with the war and the United States handling of the conflict. Upon his return home he worked with other veterans to oppose and protest the war and proved himself an eloquent speaker on a national level. The film is more than a biography of John Kerry, it is also the story of an American generation that came of age in the tumultuous 1960’s. The film was released during the 2004 Presidential election in which Kerry was the Democratic candidate. During his campaign Republican groups aired commercials which attempted to distort Kerry’s military record. Based on the book "Tour of Duty" by Douglas Brinkley. Directed by George Butler. This DVD version features a letterbox presentation; Theatrical trailer; Director profile; Weblinks.

A powerful thriller about the birth of the CIA. Edward Wilson believes in America and will sacrifice everything he loves to protect it. Edward, the only witness to his father's suicide and a member of the Skull and Bones Society while a student at Yale, is a morally upright young man who values honor and discretion. These are the qualities that help him become recruited for a career in the newly founded Office of Strategic Services (CIA). But as one of the covert founders of the CIA, his youthful idealism is slowly eroded by his growing suspicion of the people around him. Brought on by the Cold War paranoia present within the office. Eventually, he becomes an influential operative, while his distrust of everyone around him increases. His dedication to his work does not come without a price though, leading him to sacrifice his ideals and eventually his family. One of the many consequences of the Vietnam War were the thousands of displaced Vietnamese who had to flee their country and found themselves in the United States. In 1975 refugee camps were set up across the deserts of the Western States. The immigrants lived in the camps until sponsors could be found to help them assimilate into American life. This is the story of the relationship between a Vietnamese immigrant and the Marine in charge of the camp for whom he translates. The camp is full of despair and the two men bond as they attempt to address the problems of the camp. Cast includes Patrick Swayze, Forest Whitaker, Don Duong, Hiep Thi Le, Trung Nguyen. The Warner Brothers Archive Collection Series - Ostensibly based on a 'Saturday Evening Post' article in which Pittsburgh steel company worker Matt Cvetic recounted his experiences as an undercover FBI agent in the Communist Party, this is a well-crafted propaganda piece in the form of a noir thriller. Caricatured communists stand in for gangsters and there is an implication that women schoolteachers and poor Blacks are most susceptible to Red influence. The undercover agent, strong-jawed, steely-eyed Matt Cvetic, poses as a Communist to the local Pittsburgh comrades and even to his own ashamed family. Luckily, his son's pretty teacher is a Communist who's having second thoughts, and Matt's attempts to save her from the Party's vengeance may be his ticket out of a double life and into the cold light of Cold War heroism. An unusual American Western film in which many of the conventions of the genre are reworked: the good guys wear black and gender roles are reversed. Many scenes in the film resonate with sexual tension. Strong-willed saloonkeeper Vienna has a rocky relationship with local townspeople and cattle ranchers: where most locals oppose allowing the railway to come close to their town, she is eager for its arrival. Moreover, her stage-robber lover The Dancin' Kid and his gang frequent her saloon. However, this changes when Vienna takes up with Johnny Guitar, a man from her past, who has come to town, declared his love for Vienna, and offered to help protect her. But when The Dancin’ Kid robs the town bank, vengeful cattle rancher Erma Soll dr is convinced that Vienna was involved in the robbery and leads the townspeople in burning down Vienna's saloon. The mob intends to hang Vienna, but Johnny Guitar rescues her at the last minute and they escape to The Dancin' Kid's secret lair. Out for blood, the townspeople hunt them down and kill The Dancin’ Kid and his gang. Finally, Erma and Vienna engage in a duel wherein Vienna is injured and Erma is killed, after which Vienna and Johnny Guitar leave town. Based on the novel by Roy Chanslor. The Qatsi trilogy : the Criterion collection Series - Koyaanisqatsi is a documentary (of sorts). It is also a visual concert of images set to the haunting music of Phillip Glass. While there is no plot in the traditional sense, there is a definite scenario. The film opens on ancient native American cave drawings, while the soundtrack chants “Koyaanisqatsi” which is a Hopi indian term for “life out of balance.” The film uses extensive time lapse photography (which speeds images up) and slow motion photography to make comparisons between different types of physical motion. In one of the first examples, we see cloud formations moving (sped up) intercut with a montage of ocean waves (slowed down) and in such a way we are able to see the similarities of movement between these natural forces. This technique of comparison exists throughout the film, and through it we learn more about our world. Cast includes Lou Dobbs and Ted Koppel (archival footage). Booklet available from Instructional Media Collections and Services, Powell Library Room 46. Directed by Godfrey Reggio. In English, French, or Portuguese with optional English, French, Portuguese, or Spanish subtitles.

COLOR 367 MIN 01 DISTRIB 2006
This film is about the members of an ordinary, modern Italian family, in love, at work, on another one's sides and on one another's nerves. The lives of the two brothers at the center of the story, Matteo and Nicola, tell a tale of youthful baby-boomer idealism, rebelliousness, and disillusionment, followed by the mellowing of middle age. Qualified as a doctor, Nicola embodies '60s restlessness, as he becomes a woodworker. Diffident literature student Matteo becomes a soldier, then a policeman and detective. Their lives unfold as threads in the larger historical tapestry, wherein events such as the Florence floods of 1966, workers' uprisings in Turin a few years later, the Red Brigades terrorism of the 1970s, and the Mafia trials of the 1990s occur and affect them. Though their lives follow wildly divergent paths the brothers remain close, and their decisions figure strongly in determining each other's futures. The film presents a fascinating study of the ways in which people continue to grow after they have become adults. The cast includes Adriana Asti, Sonia Bergamasco, Fabrizio Giunif, Andrea Tidona. Directed by Marco Tullio Giordana. The special features on this DVD includes: Interview with Marco Tullio Giordana, Interview with Jasmine Trinca; Biographical notes on cast and crew. The Mask You Live In follows boys and young men as they struggle to stay true to themselves while negotiating America's narrow definition of masculinity. Pressured by the media, their peer group, and even the adults in their lives, our protagonists confront messages encouraging them to disconnect from their emotions, devalue authentic friendships, objectify and degrade women, and resolve conflicts through violence. These gender stereotypes interconnect with race, class and circumstance, creating a maze of identity issues boys and young men must navigate to become 'real' men. Experts in neuroscience, psychology, sociology, sports, education, and media also weigh in, offering empirical evidence of the 'boy crisis' and tactics to combat it. The Mask You Live In ultimately illustrates how we, as a society, can raise a healthier generation of boys and young men. Participants: Joe Ehrmann, Judy Y. Kathy, Ruth, and Tommy are best friends who grow up together in the isolated boarding school called Hailsham, with a chilling secret. As children, Kathy is secretly in love with Tommy. Then she sees her best friend Ruth holding Tommy’s hand, and is devastated. As adolescents, Tommy and Kathy form a deep connection, only to have Ruth shove them apart with her own secret demands. As they prepare to leave the school, they learn of their true purpose: each is a clone that will later have their organs harvested for medical purposes. Kathy takes on the role of “Carer,” dedicating herself to looking after those being slowly dissected, and eventually Tommy and Ruth prepare to make their first “donations.” As the years pass, the group grows apart, before finally reuniting just as both Tommy and Ruth are about “complete.” The cast includes Kiera Knightley, Andrew Garfield and Carey Mulligan. The new black : (DVD)

COLOR 74 MIN CALIFORNIA 2013

Documentary that examines how the African-American community is grappling with the gay rights issue in light of the recent gay marriage movement and the fight over civil rights. The film documents activists, families and clergy on both sides of the campaign to legalize gay marriage and examines homophobia in the black community’s institutional pillar – the black church – and reveals the Christian right wing’s strategy of exploiting this phenomenon in order to pursue an anti-gay political agenda. This award-winning documentary boldly examines the controversial and challenging issues facing African American communities on gay civil rights, campaigns for/against marriage equality and in particular the role of faith institutions. The film makes a compelling case that the fight for LGBT rights in Black communities is an extension of the Black Freedom Struggle. Interviewees: Karess Taylor-Hughes, Sharon Letman-Hicks, Yvette Flunder, Eric P Lee, Irene Huskens, Derel McCoy, Phil Burress, KZ Smith, Carlton Pearson, Harry Jackson, Samantha Master, Alvin Hicks, Delman Coates, Tonex, Julian Bond. Treasures III : social issues in American film 1900-1934 Series - In the years before World War I, virtually no issue was too controversial to bring to the screen. The first American movies were deeply engaged with society, coming from an era when movies and entertainment were intimately interwoven with public debate. As such, they were shown in commercial movie theaters but also in clubs, churches, schools, and everywhere screens could be hung outdoors—from the sides of city tenements to country barns. A study of performers whose lives are tied to the road. Maury Dann, an aging, third-rate country singer on tour, liberally indulges in drugs, alcohol, and sexual relations with willing women. Over the course of a seemingly typical day and a half, Dann steals a fan's girlfriend; ditches his longtime mistress, Mayleen; picks up a naive groupie named Rosamond and gives her a crash course in life on the road; fires his guitar player (and best friend) and hires a starry-eyed teenager as his replacement; tries to bribe a disc jockey with booze and free records; has a hard row to hoe with his speed-addicted mother; discovers he's missed his son's birthday by four months; encounters the angry boyfriend of a woman with whom he's had a liaison; and, in acahoots with his manager, Clarence, fast-talks his loyal driver, cook, and gofer, Chicago, into taking a possible murder rap.

Picasso and Braque go to the movies : (DVD) 18662.ID COLOR 60 MIN NEW VIDEO 2008 This film advances an interesting thesis: if the static visual arts affected early cinema's vocabulary, did moving pictures inspire Cubism's two towering giants, Pablo Picasso and Georges Braque? Cinema and Cubism were born during the birth of modernity itself, and filmmaker Arne Glimcher argues that films, from the earliest days of Thomas Edison and the Lumiere Brothers, were a crucial formative influence on Modern painting, particularly on Picasso and Braque. The movies' revolutionary portrayal of time, space, and motion was the engine behind the modernist revolution in fine art. Through interviews with art historians, practicing plastic and visual artists, poets, and filmmakers, it traces the effects of technological revolution—specifically the invention of aviation and the creation of cinema—and their interdependent influence on the art dubbed Modern. Narrator: Martin Scorsese; interviewees: Bernice Rose, Tom Gunning, Robert Whitman, Natasha Staller, Eric Fischl, Julian Schnabel, Jennifer Wild, Lucas Samaras, Coojee Van Bruggen, John Yau, Kim Tomadoglio, John Richardson, Adam Gopnik, Chuck Close. Hollywood: A Celebration of the American Silent Film Series - Hollywood began turning out spectacular films, with original musical scores – often performed live by a symphony orchestra, and shown in glittering picture palaces. Audiences flocked to the theater and reacted enthusiastically for such films as "The Great Lie", "The Legacy", and "The Birth of a Nation." Large audiences gave birth to the financial fortunes of Hollywood. Interviews are featured with Lilian Gish, Dolores Costello, Blanche Sweet, Jackie Coogan, King Vidor. Includes rare footage and excerpts from "Wings," "The Wind," "Noah's Ark," and "The Black Pirate." The Hollywood series celebrates the birth of an industry, the families and the people who made it all happen – the stars, the scandals, the directors, producers, cameraman, and stuntmen. And the films themselves that make up the legend known as Hollywood.

On the distant northwest edge of China lies Xinjiang, a vast region of snow-capped mountains, barren deserts and gritty market cities. Here, along the ancient Silk Road, music is one of the hottest commodities: it is vibrant, infectious, and far-reaching, permeating every corner of the province. Yet, around the music lies a troubling reality. Engaged in an identity tug-of-war, the region's main population – the Uyghur Muslims – are gradually watching their populations dwindle as they are engulfed by a predominant Han Chinese settlement. One of the very few documentaries to come out of Xinjiang, "The Silk Road of Pop" captures the challenges of a minority group in China and the explosive music scene which results. The Criterion Collection Series - A day in the life of a loose-knit subculture of marinal, eccentric, and overeducated citizens of Austin, Texas. Featuring over one hundred characters, the film eschews a traditional plot, for a series of conversations, storytelling, surreal situations, and uncomfortable social interactions, linked with fluid transitions achieving an episodic portrait of a distinct vernacular culture and a tribute to bohemian cerebration. Written and directed by Richard Linklater. This two-disc Criterion Collection DVD version includes a new transfer, with restored images and sound; Three audio commentaries featuring Richard Linklater and members of the cast and crew; Casting tapes featuring select "auditions" from the over one-hundred-member cast, with an essay from production manager/casting director Anne Walker-McBay; An early film treatment; Home movies; Ten-minute trailer for a documentary about the Landmark Austin café, Les Amis, which served as location for several scenes; Stills gallery featuring hundreds of rare behind-the-scenes production and publicity photos; English subtitles for the deaf and hearing impaired. Disc two includes "It's Impossible to Learn to Plow by Reading Books" (1988), Linklater's first full-length feature, with commentary by the director; "Woodshock" an early 16mm short made by Linklater and Lee Daniel in 1985; "The Roadmap," the working script of "Slacker" including four deleted scenes and alternative takes; Footage from the "Slacker" tenth-anniversary reunion in Austin, Texas in 2001; Original theatrical trailer; Slacker culture essay by Linklater; Information about the Austin Film Society founded in 1985 by Linklater with Daniel, including early flyers from screenings; English subtitles for the deaf and hearing impaired; 64-page booklet featuring essays by author and film critic Joel Peter Sen and Michael Barker, reviews, production notes, a complete cast and crew listing, and an introduction to "It's Impossible to Learn to Plow by Reading Books" by director Monte Hellman. The film features the story of three famous baseball players of the 40s, when for the first time a black player took the field. In 1945, the world of baseball is divided between the Majors and the Negro League—but the time has come for change. One team will be the first to sign a black player. Only one player will be the first to take the field. The Brooklyn Dodgers want to make the deal that will make history. But the man they choose will be more than a great player—he has to have the charisma of a star. It soon comes down to three powerful and extraordinary players: legendary pitcher Satchel Paige; the greatest hitter in baseball Josh Gibson; and a rookie by the name of Jackie Robinson. Three players—three friends—three champions. Together they are unbeatable—but only one will cross the home plate into history.

The Warner Brothers Archive Collection Series - This unheralded B-picture, a blend of murder mystery and psychological thriller, employing stream of consciousness narration, is now claimed as the first true American film noir. It shows the overt influence of German expressionism in the merging of a dream and reality and the stressing of paranoia and claustrophobia through set design and baroque photography, reaching its apogee in the seminal nightmare sequence. Rising reporter Michael Ward is a key witness in the murder trial of young Joe Briggs, who is convicted on circumstantial evidence while swearing innocence. The narration begins to affect his entire life, from his work, to his love-interest. Searching for the source of the voice, he turns to a literary professor who discovers that he is the central character of the novel of a talented but troubled novelist. The novelist is famous for killing off her main characters in creative ways and has already announced the imminent death of the IRS agent in her narration. The man must track down the writer and stop her before she comes up with a way to end his life. Cast includes Will Ferrell, Maggie Gyllenhaal, Dustin Hoffman. The story follows the life of regional theater director Caden Cotard as he mounts a new play. Determined to create a piece of brutal realism and honesty, he gathers an ensemble cast into a warehouse in Manhattan’s theater district. He instructs each to live out their constructed lives in a small mock up of the city outside. As the city inside the warehouse grows, Cotard’s own life veers wildly off track. He struggles with romantic relationships, problems of aging, and a mysteriously degenerative medical condition. He develops a monumental theater piece. Building a full-scale replica of New York City inside and impossibly large warehouse and populating it with thousands of actors, Cotard spends the remainder of his life creating a piece so personal and epic in scope, that the line between reality and art collide, and his universe that he has spent his life constructing, begins to unravel.

The plot follows the novel more closely than does any other Tarzan movie. John and Alice Clayton take ship for Africa. Mutineers maroon them. After his parents die the newborn Tarzan is taken by a great Ape, Kala. Later the boy finds his father's knife and uses it to become King of Apes. Binns, the sailor who saved the Claytons and who has been held by Arab slavers for ten years, finds the young Tarzan and then heads for England to notify his kin. A scientist arrives to check out Binns’ story. Tarzan, now a man, kills the native who killed Kala; when their chief is killed the black villagers appease Tarzan with gifts and prayers. The scientist’s daughter Jane is carried off by a native, rescued by Tarzan (who has burnt the native village), aggressively loved by him ("Tarzan is a man, and men do not force the love of women"), and at last accepts him with open arms. Audrey Burke is reeling from the shock of the news that has just been delivered to her door by the local police - her husband, Brian, had been killed in a random act of violence. Once anchored by the stability and comforts of their marriage, Audrey is now adrift. Impulsively, she turns to Jerry, a down-and-out addict who has been her husband's close friend since childhood. Desperate to fill the painful void caused by her husband's death, Audrey invites Jerry to move into the room adjacent to their garage in the hope that he can help her and her children cope with their sudden loss. Now, in facing a daily battle to stay off drugs and his unexpected role as surrogate parent and friend to Audrey's son and daughter, he finds a core of inner resilience.

As Jerry and Audrey navigate grief and denial, their fragile bonds are constantly tested. Together, they discover the strength to move forward. COLOR 90 MIN VIDEO DATA 2003
This film depicts the daily life of Layton House, a fictional therapeutic community, where doctors live with their schizophrenic patients. The characters and events of Layton House were drawn from writings of the anti-psychiatry movement, whose most famous proponent was R.D. Laing. In this film we see experimental therapies, power struggles, and the individual arcs of mental illness converge, as a community struggles to understand itself and determine its destiny. The director writes, 'Threads of Belonging was made out of an interest in the alternatives to institutionalization offered by the therapeutic community. I also felt that the idealism and passion of madness in the Jim Jones and his circle were due for reconsideration. The film was shot in a documentary style with digital video, and combines staged reenactment (in this case, based on case histories) with improvisation. Both cast and crew lived together in the house where we filmed, and so the dynamics of a real community came to bear on the fictional one of Layton House. It is one of the film's strategies to foreground the troubled relationship between the way actors perform 'madness' and the way real insanity can itself resemble a performance. Also, there is an inherent sadness in the suffering of the patients and the failed idealism of this kind of intentional living. In preparation for the production of Threads of Belonging, patients were given case histories and background writing, and paired with their 'doctors' to develop their roles. Very few scenes were scripted. The film was both produced and acted by local artists and filmmakers in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Thus 'Threads of Belonging' is also an homage to the thriving, resilient community that I have found here.' Juan and Elizabeth Linden and her lover, William Walter, plan to steal an emerald dagger from Istanbul’s Topkapi Museum. Cedric Page, an eccentric British inventor; Giulio, a mute athlete; and Fischer, a strongman, are recruited. In Greece, the gang hires con man Arthur Simpson to drive a car over the border and meet them in Istanbul, but he is stopped by the Turkish police, who discover weapons hidden in the trunk. Major Tufan, one of the policemen, questions Simpson and then allows him to leave... on the condition that he spy on the gang. At their villa headquarters, the gang plans the robbery: Fischer is to lower Giulio on a rope from a window near the museum's ceiling so that Giulio can steal the dagger while dangling above the sensitively wired floors of the museum. Geven, the drunken cook at the villa, believes the men are Russian spies and tells Simpson, who in turn passes the information on to Tuflan. Later, Geven accidentally smashes Fischer's hands in a door, and Simpson is enlisted to take Fischer's place, although he has revealed his link to the police. The gang manages to elude Tuflan, steal the dagger, and pass it to a Gypsy who will smuggle it out of Turkey. Flaunting their success, the gang goes to see Tuflan, and Elizabeth explains that weapons were discovered in their car, but while they are in the major's office, a bird flies through an open window in the museum and lands on the floor, triggering the alarm. The entire gang is arrested, but the undaunted Elizabeth begins outlining her plans for their next job—the theft of the Romanoff jewels from the Kremlin. COLOR 80 MIN MEDIA EDUC 2013
In this highly anticipated update of the influential and widely acclaimed Tough Guise, pioneering anti-violence educator and cultural theorist Jackson Katz argues that the ongoing epidemic of men's violence in America is rooted in its inability as a society to move beyond outdated ideals of manhood. In a sweeping analysis that cuts across racial, ethnic, and class lines, Katz examines mass shootings, day-to-day gun violence, violence against women, bullying, gay-bashing, and American militarism against the backdrop of a culture that has normalized violent and regressive forms of masculinity in the face of challenges to traditional male power and authority. Along the way, the film provides a stunning look at the violent, sexist, and homophobic messages boys and young men routinely receive from virtually every corner of the culture, from television, movies, video games, and advertising to pornography, the sports culture, and US political culture. Katz argues that the combination of militarism against the backdrop of a culture that has normalized violent and regressive forms of masculinity is the root of the ongoing epidemic of men's violence in America. That epidemic has costs for men, women, and society.

B&W 83 MIN THE NATION 1932
According to contemporary reviewers, "Uncle Moses" follows closely the Yiddish Art Theater's adaptation of the 1918 Sholem Asch novel by the same name. Best known for his portrayals of the shetl, in "Uncle Moses" Asch shifts his focus from Eastern Europe to New York City's Lower East Side at the turn of the twentieth century. In vivid, sometimes comic, yet always soberly realistic images, the film portrays the lives of East European Jews transplanted onto American soil. The bustling sweatshop and overcrowded tenement serve as the backdrop for a rich thematic blend of romantic intrigue, old and young love, realization of financial success, disintegration of the Jewish family, early struggles of the garment workers' union movement, and the clash of old-world values and new-world dreams. The pivotal role of Uncle Moses, benevolent despot and self-made patriarch among his landsmen, serves as an excellent vehicle for consummate actor Maurice Schwartz. While often flamboyant in his portrayal of this complex figure, Schwartz achieves a characterization of great dignity and compassion. Based on the novel by Sholem Asch. Cast includes Maurice Schwartz, Rubin Goldberg, Judith Abarbanell, Zvee Scooler, Mark Schweid, Sally Achor, Jacob Mestel, Rebecca Weintraub, Sam Gertler.

Inspired by the book "The long walk" by Slavomir Rawicz. In 1941 three men walked out of the Himalayas into India. They have survived a 4,000 mile walk to freedom. While there is disagreement on whether or not this is a true story, this film is a textbook example of the "man vs. Nature-red-in-tooth-and-claw" survival film. Janusz, a Polish prisoner of war, is forced to sign a false confession and shipped off to Siberia to rot in the most brutal prison system in the world—the Gulag. In prison, he meets a renowned Russian actor, an American architect, and a hardened Russian gangster. Janusz convinces six of his fellows to accompany him in an escape, which improbably succeeds, and then the real trial begins—punishing race against the elements, time, hunger, and fear. Participants include Ed Harris, Jim Sturgess, Saoirse Ronan, Colin Farrell, Dragos Bucur, Alexandru Potocean, Gustaf Skarsgard, Sebastian Urzendowski, Mark Strong. Directed by Peter Weir. Special features: “The journey of the journey” (31 min.); Trailer (2 min.). In English with optional subtitles in English SDH or Spanish.

"The Woman, the orphan, and the tiger" is the third film in a trilogy of narrative experimental films dealing with international adoption and the ideological, geopolitical, historical, and psychological effects of that process. This film looks at the legacy of international adoption from a feminist perspective and within a transgenerational and transnational scope. It explores the ways in which trauma is passed on from previous generations to the present through a sense of being haunted and points to the politics involved in search. The film attempts to situate international adoption within a longer history of military and patriarchal violence against women and children in the aftermath of Japanese colonialism, the Cold War, and the emergence of U.S. imperialism. Featuring the voices of Grace M. Cho and Tammy Chu. Directed by Jane Jin Kaisen and Guston Sindon-Kung. In English, Danish and Korean with English subtitles.

Young Mr. Lincoln : (DVD) 20564,ID
B&W 100 MIN CRITERION 1939
The Criterion Collection Series - In this unforgettable portrait of the early life of the Great Emancipator, young Mr. Lincoln, after teaching himself law, has barely started practicing when an Independence Day celebration ends with a stabbing. Abe first stops a lynching mob from killing brothers Matt and Adam Clay, and then defends them against a seasoned prosecutor and his crafty adviser. As presented here, Lincoln is a strong but peaceful frontier democrat, his quiet, awkward, folksy demeanor the outward manifestation of a deep humility, and a wise sadness at human folly. His awareness that his attempts to reconcile opposing forces—despite the occasional temporary victory—are doomed but necessary, hint at the character that will respond to the destiny that awaits him. Cast includes Henry Fonda, Alice Brady, Marjorie Weaver, Arleen Whelan, Eddie Collins, Pauline Moore, Richard Cromwell, Donald Meek, Judith Dickens, Eddie Quillan, Spencer Charters, Ward Bond. Original screenplay by Lamar Trotti. Directed by John Ford. This two-disc Criterion collection DVD version features audio commentary featuring film historian Joseph McBride (searching for John Ford: a life); "John Ford” part one: filmmaker Lindsay Andersons profile of the life and work of director John Ford before World War II; Talk show appearance by actor Henry Fonda from 1975; Audio interviews from the seventies with Ford and Fonda conducted by the directors grandson Dan Ford; Academy Award radio dramatization of the film; Eassy by critic Geoffrey O'Brien and an homage to Ford by filmmaker Sergei Eisenstein; Language: English; Subtitles: English closed captioning for the deaf and hearing impaired.
